STOP WOMEN AND CHILD ABUSE

Most women are taught from a very early age to be submissive and be respectful towards their male partners. So when someone does something that makes them uncomfortable, they often find it difficult to express their displeasure. This has led to a significant increase in the number of femicide and women abuse cases in the country. It is about time that women are taught to look out for the typical signs of an abusive man. Women must be concerned when their partners start showing any of the following behaviour:

1) He constantly wants to know your whereabouts and the company you keep.
2) He chooses the friends you must keep.
3) He constantly goes through your phone to check who you have been communicating with.
4) He constantly monitors your social media accounts such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and WhatsApp.
5) He often belittles you, calling you names in public and telling you how you are nothing without him.
