The Lost Puppy

On Saturday morning, Thabo and his little sister Naledi walked to the shop to buy bread. On the way, they heard a soft crying sound under a bush. It was a small brown puppy with a white spot on its head. The puppy was cold, thin and scared.

Naledi picked it up gently and wrapped it in her jersey. "We cannot leave it here," said Thabo. They took the puppy home. Mama gave it some milk and a warm blanket.

The next day, Thabo and Naledi made posters that said "FOUND: a brown puppy". Two days later, an old man knocked at the door. It was Mr Dube. "That is my puppy, Bobo!" he said with a big smile. He thanked the children and gave them a packet of biscuits.
