higher education & training

Department:
Higher Education and Training
REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA

MARKING GUIDELINE

NATIONAL CERTIFICATE (VOCATIONAL)

ADVERTING AND PROMOTIONS
NQF LEVEL 4

27 FEBRUARY 2019

This marking guideline consists of 10 pages.

Copyright reserved

QUESTION 1

1.1 True
1.2 False
1.3 False
1.4 False
1.5 True
1.6 True
1.7 True
1.8 True
1.9 True
1.10 False

(10 × 1) [10]

QUESTION 2

2.1 C
2.2 A
2.3 E
2.4 F
2.5 B
2.6 D
2.7 H
2.8 I
2.9 G
2.10 K
2.11 J
2.12 N
2.13 L
2.14 O
2.15 M

(15 × 1) [15]

Copyright reserved

QUESTION 3

3.1 Radio
3.2 Breach
3.3 Publicity
3.4 Serifs
3.5 Type
3.6 Legal rights
3.7 Barrier
3.8 Information overload
3.9 Benefit
3.10 Cut
3.11 Bone mores
3.12 Animation
3.13 Statutory bodies
3.14 Brand image
3.15 Ambush marketing

(5 × 1) [15]

This is only a guideline and other applicable answers could be considered.

QUESTION 4

4.1 Exclusive means that the new kids meal product range is only available at Checkers. (2)

4.2
- Parents with young children
- Busy/Working moms or dads (1)

4.3
- Run focus group: A small sample of people from your target market is brought together by a marketing company. They are then asked to give their opinion about a new product, ad or promotion.
- Interview people at point of purchase: Some of the best research takes place in natural settings, asking shoppers how they choose a product, or listen in to conversations where people are discussing brands and products.
- Consult experts in the target market: Ask a few key people who have expert knowledge of your target market. Owners of B&Bs or people who own coffee shops could be interviewed and asked for their opinion.
- Use small segments of direct mail lists: If you are running a competition or a promotion by direct mail, one way to test your market is to send your mailing to just a small segment of your list and watch the response.
- Test in one region: Try your promotional idea in one region first. If it is successful, you can go national.

(1 mark for naming each method and 1 mark for each explanation)
(Any 3 × 2) (6)

4.4
- Customers will gain more trust in the Checkers' brand or their new kids' product range seeing that it has won a reward.
- The award can help to create awareness for Checkers' new kids meals.
- The award can help to create interest or desire to try the new product.
- It can help to stimulate sales of the new kids' meal products.

(Any 3 × 1) (3)

4.5
- Choose one main idea for your media message.
- Decide when you want the news to be released.
- Decide which media vehicles are most likely to be interested in your news.
- Decide on the section for your message such as finance, entertainment, health.
- Get the name of the journalist who covers the section in which you want your media message to appear and mark it for the attention of that person.
- Write your media release.
- Proofread your media release carefully before sending it off.
- Follow up the next day by phoning the journalists you sent it to. (8 × 1) (8)

4.6
- Start with the brand image: Build on what was done before. Unless you are launching a totally new product, your brand already has a position in the market compared to other products and it already has an image or 'personality'.
- Make a promise that matters: The promise you make must really matter to your target market. In each product category there is often one benefit that every brand would like to stand for.
- Make a promise that's unique: If you can offer a benefit that no other competing product offers, you have a unique selling point (USP).
- Choose a fact: If possible, pick a feature or a benefit that no one can doubt or argue about - a hard fact.
- Take on your competitors: Take on your competitors by pointing out there weaknesses. What does your product offer that your competitors don't?
- Turn a disadvantage into an advantage: Try turning your disadvantage into something to be proud of.
- Finding the creative ideas: Once you know your consumer promise, you need to find a way to give it a fresh and surprising twist.

(1 mark for naming each guideline and 1 mark for each explanation)

(Any 5 × 2) (10)

4.7
- Geographical coverage: Your advertising must reach people in all the areas where your target market lives or where your product is for sale.
- Reach: It is the number of people in your target market that get exposed to your message at least once during your campaign.
- Frequency/Repetition: The number of times each prime prospect is exposed to your message.
- Continuity: It is the length of time that an advertising campaign will run. It may be a week, a month or a year.

(1 mark for naming each principle and 1 mark for each explanation) (3 × 2) (6)

4.8
- Use well-chosen words. Use the kind of words your target market would use.
- Use fresh phrases, be wary of using clichés.
- Use short active sentences. Keep sentences short and clear. Don't use unnecessary punctuation. Write in the active voice.
- Use many short paragraphs. Solid black areas of text put people off. If you write long copy, break it up into short, manageable paragraphs.

(4 × 1) (4)
[40]

QUESTION 5

5.1
- This law makes it unlawful to give false information about goods for sale, on the goods themselves or on any form of labelling, packaging or advertising.✓✓

This includes information such as:
- The brand name✓
- The size, weight, quantity or materials of which products are made✓
- The way they were produced✓
- The country where they were produced (5)

5.2 5.2.1
- The two parties must make an agreement between them.
- The offer must be serious and definite, not vague.
- Both parties should have the same understanding of what the agreement is.
- The contract should not be illegal or go against the morals of society.
- The parties must be legally allowed to enter into a contract.

(5 × 1) (5)

5.2.2 Matilda is underage as she is younger than 18 years and she is not legally allowed to sign a contract. (2)

5.2.3 A parent or legal guardian (Gordon Ramsay) has signed the contract with her to make it binding/legal. (2)

5.3
- Know your goals – You must know what your advertising campaign is trying to do before you think about media.
- Know your budget – The amount of money you have to spent is always an important factor.
- Let the customer decide – Choose the media that will reach your target market in the best way.
- Suit the medium to the message – Choose the medium that suits both your message and your brand image.
- Use media creatively – It is important to make your advertising stand out and be noticed.
- Link media messages together – Don't confuse consumers by sending different messages through different media.

(1 mark for naming each factor and 1 mark for each explanation) (Any 5 × 2) (10)

5.4 5.41
- People can control the order in which they look at it
- People can control how long they spend reading it
- It is not very expensive
- It is good for brand image when high quality magazine printing is used.

(Any 2 × 1) (2)

5.4.2
- Only the eye (visual impact) is used
- It has to compete for attention with other articles and ads at the same time
- Placement of an advert can be poor and grab no attention

(Any 2 × 1) (2)

5.5
- Free samples and trials: Consumers often don't want to risk their money on a new product that may disappoint them, but being able to try before they buy can help overcome this problem. Free samples can also draw attention to your products.
- Price deals: Offering something at a reduced price always encourages people to buy. Instead of reducing the price you can also increase what the consumer receives.
- Competitions: The chance to get something free or win something can create an incentive to buy a product.
- Loyalty rewards: Loyalty rewards build long-term relationships as well as short-term sales.
- Events and sponsorships: Marketers know that the fans of sports teams, pop bands and artists are usually very loyal and emotional about them. Linking a brand with these stars can help raise the brand's status, build good will and develop a relationship with the fans.
- Cause marketing: It is a growing trend among businesses to gain goodwill by 'doing good' for others. This is good for society and business at the same time.
- Tie-ins and product licensing: Tie-ins are promotions that link with marketing strategies of other brands to benefit both brands.

(1 mark for naming each promotion and 1 mark for each explanation)
(Any 5 × 2) (10)

5.6 Specialties are gifts of useful items such as calendars, clothing items and writing instruments which have the brand logo printed on them to remind buyers of the brand. (1 × 2) (2)

[40]

QUESTION 6

6.1 6.1.1 The NEW Lasher Tools app (1)

6.1.2
- Weather
- Sports feed
- Gardening tips
- Lasher product guide
- Useful gardening videos
- DIY projects (Any 5 × 1) (5)

6.1.3 Tough, reliable tools, guaranteed (1)

6.1.4 Download for FREE from:
- App Store
- Google play
- Facebook (2 × 1) (2)

6.2.1 Product features are the qualities a product has. (2)

6.2.2
- Study the product: Get to know the product by reading information, underlining any details that are interesting or unusual. If possible, get hold of the product and try it out.
- Speak to suppliers or sales staff: They can give a lot of important information about how the product does (and doesn't) meet the needs of the consumers.
- Visit the factory: By visiting the factory one can find out a lot of interesting details about a product that you may never have thought of.

(1 mark for naming each way and 2 mark for each explanation) (3 × 3) (9)

6.3 6.3.1
- Technical skills: Include unique skills that a member should have such as skills to manufacture ovens with such the required features and benefits.
- Problem solving and decision making skills: Members must be able to identify a problem and come up with solutions e.g. technical problems with ovens and/or with members and be able to solve them.
- People skills: Being able to cooperate and communicate with others as well as to have the ability to listen well and give feedback.

(1 mark for naming each skill and 1 mark for each explanation) (3 × 2) (6)

6.3.2
- Avoid: You could withdraw, sidestep the issues or leave the root cause unsolved, often because you don't expect to be able to solve it. This approach can be useful if the issue is not important and you want to lower the tension levels.
- Accommodate: You could stand back and allow others to do things their way. You may do this if the issue is not important to you or you want to build goodwill or keep peace.
- Compete: You could stand your ground and fight for your own way or use your formal authority to make a decision. This approach may be suitable if the matter is urgent or very important.
- Compromise: You could bargain and try to find a middle way where both parties get part of what they want, but also give up something.
- Collaborate: You could listen actively, identify the main issues, analyse people's input and find a creative solution. This is always the best solution to conflict, but it takes the most time and energy.

(1 mark for each way and 1 mark for each explanation)(3 × 2) (6)

6.3.3
- Self-awareness
- Self-management
- Self-motivation
- Empathy
- Social skills (Any 4 × 1) (4)

6.3.4
- It provides a larger pool of information and skills to draw on.
- It provides a wider range of viewpoints, insights and solutions.
- It provides decisions as a result.
- It provides more commitment from the team to the decision.
- Group members share ideas.
- Team members help each other stay focused on the overall goal.
- Team members learn to deal with feedback and criticism.
- It encourages social interaction.
- It adds credibility to products and assignments.

(OR any other acceptable answer) (4 × 1) (4)
[40]

QUESTION 7

7.1 7.1.1 Frequency: 2 to 3 times a week (1)

7.1.2 Continuity: 1 May 2017 to 15 July 2017 (1)

7.1.3 Reach: 84% (1)

7.1.4
- Cost: Look at your budget to determine what option will be best. Often it is worth spending the full allowed budget to get the maximum effect from the promotion. Cost also involves how much expertise it will take to implement the idea. Look at how much time and other resources will be needed.
- Resources: Think carefully about what resources each promotional proposal will need to succeed. What costs and what difficulties will this create during the promotion.
- Skills and expertise: What special skills or expertise will the promotion need to be a success? Are these skills available within the organisation or the agency or must they be specially hired.
- Benefit to the client: Compare the amount of benefit each strategy is likely to provide.
- Decide within agreed time frames: Promotions usually have a specific goal that is time-related. Be sure that you make your decisions well enough in advance to be able to bring the idea to reality in good time.

(1 mark for each item and 1 mark for each explanation)
(Any 5 × 2) (10)

7.2
- Specify all those involved in the sponsorship agreement
- The exact nature and value of the sponsorship
- Any money the sponsor must pay and all terms and conditions of this payment
- Any conditions for how the money should be used
- Any products or services the sponsor must supply and the terms and conditions for supplying these
- How and when the products or services should be used
- How the sponsor may use the name and events of the sponsored party for advertising
- How long the sponsorship agreement lasts and the options for renewing it
- Procedures for communicating and making decisions that affect the success of the sponsorship
- Who owns any intellectual property that may arise, such as a performer's music

(Any 6 × 1) (6)

7.3
- 3 days after scamps have been presented✓ the creative team come together to show the creative director✓ what they plan to present to the client.✓
- This may include, roughs, storyboards, renderings or feel boards.✓
- If the creative director is satisfied, he/she will agree to schedule a presentation with the client and if not satisfied, they will rework it again✓
- They will then show the work to the AE before the presentation.✓ (6 × 1)

(6)

7.4 7.4.1
- He used the technique of 'inherent drama'. He believed that in every product or service there is some kind of drama that makes the product stand out from others. He said a copywriter must highlight that.
- He uses earthy 'vernacular'; friendly words consumers could relate to.

7.4.2
- It was important to learn how users of a product see it, and what emotions and human qualities it brings about. He tried to convey these emotions.
- He believed that consumers had to be respected, advertisers had to earn their trust and win them over.

7.4.3 He believed every ad should help to create the brand image or the personality of a product and this personality should stick in consumers' minds year after year.

(3 × 2) (6)

7.5
- Copywriter
- Art director
- Designer
- Desktop publisher
- Creative director (Any 4 × 1) (4)

7.6
- The Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) can sort out complaints faster and at less cost than the law courts.
- ASA can adapt its regulations to changing conditions faster and easier than laws.
- ASA follows rules and doesn't try to find ways to get around them.
- ASA helps to build trust and goodwill between advertisers and consumers.
- ASA can regulate aspects of advertising that laws cannot easily control.

(Any 5 × 1) (5)
[40]

TOTAL: 200

Copyright reserved