higher education & training

Department:
Higher Education and Training
REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA

MARKING GUIDELINE

NATIONAL CERTIFICATE (VOCATIONAL)

ADVERTISING AND PROMOTION
NQF LEVEL 4

18 NOVEMBER 2019

This marking guideline consists of 9 pages.

Copyright reserved

QUESTION 1

1.1 False
1.2 True
1.3 True
1.4 False
1.5 True
1.6 True
1.7 True
1.8 True
1.9 False
1.10 True

(10 × 1) [10]

QUESTION 2

2.1 D
2.2 F
2.3 A
2.4 H
2.5 K
2.6 B
2.7 C
2.8 M
2.9 E
2.10 O
2.11 G
2.12 I
2.13 J
2.14 L
2.15 N

(15 × 1) [15]

QUESTION 3

3.1 Promotions
3.2 Television
3.3 Fresh phrases
3.4 Movement
3.5 Pulling
3.6 Stopping
3.7 Advertorial
3.8 Execution
3.9 Focus group
3.10 Panning
3.11 Passing off
3.12 Puffery
3.13 Stakeholders
3.14 Survey
3.15 Slogan

(15 × 1) [15]

Copyright reserved

QUESTION 4

4.1 4.1.1 Buy any Blue Ribbon loaf and stand a chance to win a Raleigh mountain bike worth R3 000. (2)

4.1.2 Blue Ribbon (2)

4.1.3 www.blueribbon.co.za (2)

4.1.4
- You must buy a blue ribbon loaf.
- You must fill in your details on the entry forms provided and drop it into the Blue Ribbon entry boxes in the store.
- The competition was from 16 September 2015–16 October 2015.
- You need to retain till slip as proof of purchase. (4 × 1) (4)

4.1.5 Competition (2)

4.1.6
- For legal protection if the bicycle is not exactly the same. Consumers cannot sue Blue Ribbon and say they want a prize like the one in the picture.
- To avoid using false or misleading advertising. (Any 2 × 1) (2)

4.2
- Geographical coverage: Determine if the advert reached people in all the target areas or where the product is sold.
- Reach: Number of people the target market who get exposed to the message at least once during the campaign.
- Frequency/Repetition: Number of times each prime prospect is exposed to the message.
- Continuity: Duration of advertising campaign. It may be a week, a month or a year. (4 × 2) (8)

4.3 4.3.1
- Can be looked at in any order
- Any amount of time can be spent on it
- Can be saved for later
- Wide coverage in newspapers
- Specific audience in magazines
- Complex information communicated
- Can be read inside and outside the home
- Attracts affluent and influential readers
- Durability–long life
- Flexibility of size
- Read at leisure (Any 3 × 1) (3)

4.3.2
- Visual impact of an ad must be strong as only eyes are used
- It has to compete for attention with other articles and ads at the same time
- Limited reach
- No sound and motion
- Low quality colour reproduction
- Low frequency and low penetration level
- Messages compete with one another
- Long lead time required
- Comparatively expensive (Any 3 × 1) (3)

4.3.3
- All elements on the ad must work together as one because when they compete with each other, they weaken the message.
- One element must dominate or stand out and must be arranged to catch the ye.
- The layout must help to lead the reader's eye through the element in the correct order to get the message across.
- Make the visual dominant and interesting if it carries most of the message and keep the headline simple.
- Ensure that the image and the copy complement each other to add something more to the whole.
- The layout must help to lead the reader's eye through the elements in the correct order to get the message across.
- Use a range of size, shape and tone for variety. (6 × 2) (12)

[40]

QUESTION 5

5.1
- Run a focus group: A sample from the target market brought together by a marketing company and asked to give their opinion about a new product advertisement or promotion.
- Interview people at point of purchase: Some of the best research takes place in natural settings, asking shoppers how they choose a product, or listening to conversations where people are discussing brands and products.
- Consult experts in the target market: Ask a few key people who have expert knowledge of your target markets. Maybe ask the opinions of B&B owners or people who own coffee shops.
- Use small segments of direct mail lists: If you are running a competition or a promotion by direct mail, one way to test your market is to send your a mailing to a small segment of your list and note the response.
- Test in one region: The promotional idea in one region first. If it is successful, you can go national.
- Portfolio test: Some dummy copies are kept in a folio and the customer is asked what he has seen in each advertisement.
- Direct questioning: A consumer jury is formed and either the whole advertisement or its different elements are tested by asking direct questions. (Any 5 × 2) (10)

Copyright reserved

5.2
- Headline
- Dateline
- Leading paragraph
- Quote
- Body copy
- End
- Further details
- Contact details . (Any 6 × 1) (6)

5.3
- Body copy: If the advertisement includes body, copy some of this information may be used in the copy.
- Legal proof: If anyone questions the legality of the advertisement you may need to present the reach that you based it on.
- Further advertising: It is important to keep information because you might need to use it in future. (3 × 2) (6)

5.4
- Cost: Consider the budget to determine the what best option. Often it is worth spending the full allowed budget to get the maximum effect from the promotion. Cost also involves how much expertise will it take to implement the idea and how much time and other resources will be needed.
- Resources: Decide which resources each promotional proposal needs. What costs and what difficulties will this create during the promotion?
- Skills and expertise: What special skills or expertise will the promotion need to be a success? Are these skills available within the organisation or the agency, or must they be specially hired?
- Benefit to the client: Compare the benefit each strategy is likely to provide.
- Decide within agreed time frames: Promotions usually have a specific time-related goal. Ensure decisions are made in advance realise the idea in good time. (5 × 2) (10)

5.5
- Copywriter: Comes up with creative ideas and writes copy.
- Art director: Responsible for visual aspects
- Designer: They do final layouts of print ads and also design things such as logos, packaging and brochures.
- Desktop publisher: They retouch photos, do colour correction and prepare final advertisements. (Any 4 × 2) (8)

[40]

QUESTION 6

6.1 A storyboard is the rough copy for a television advertisement.

Graphic organizer in the form of illustrations or images displayed in sequence for the purpose of previsualising a motion picture, animation, motion graphic or interactive media sequence. (Any 2 × 1) (2)

6.2 Milo can be enjoyed anywhere or by anyone. (2)

6.3
- The frames must be numbered.
- There must be an explanation for each frame.
- There must be a flow from frame to frame.
- Indicate what song/music will be playing.
- SFX (sound effect) must be added to frames (Any 2 × 2) (4)

6.4
- All prizes must be available and awarded as described.
- Judging is prompt and fair and confirmed by an independent auditor.
- The rules of the contest are clearly stated at the point of entry.
- A full list of winners is confirmed by an independent auditor and available to competitors.
- All entries are treated in exactly the same way unless the advertiser made clear how they would be treated differently.
- No one connected to the competition in any way, nor their family members, may receive a prize.
- No one may receive a prize of a product they are not legally allowed to own, such as liquor if they are under 18 years old. (Any 4 × 2) (8)

6.5
- Face-to-face meeting: This is the most natural way for people to communicate. It involves a two-way conversation and you can react to each other and get immediate answers to questions.
- Body language: A person tends to share extra information about his/her attitude and emotions through tone of voice, facial expression, body movement and posture.
- Phone calls: Phone calls take less time, therefore they are an important communication tool. Personal contact is created by voice. The tone of voice also expresses emotion.
- Writing: Writing helps both parties to be sure of the agreement. This is a useful method when large amounts of information need to be shared.
- E-mail: E-mail allows you to have more time to think about your reply. You can also communicate instantly. It does not interrupt you when you are busy and you can also send pictures, letters and quotations as attachments.
- Drawing: A valuable way of communicating creative ideas especially since most marketing is visual. Mind maps, and sketches are often used.

(Any 3 × 2) (6)

Copyright reserved

6.6
- Hearing what you want to hear: How people interpret messages depending on what they expect to hear or see.
- Information overload: When there is too much at once, you start missing details.
- Emotion: Your feelings and mood while receiving a message affect how you interpret it.
- Language and culture: Words can have different meanings to different sub-cultures.
- Fear of loss of image: Subordinates may intentionally pass on only information that is helpful for maxims and budding.
- Suspecting attitude: Lower level employees create doubt with supervisors or higher officials.
- Dissatisfaction: When upward communication is neglected by top management it creates dissatisfaction workers who are reluctant to work.
- Lack of self-confidence: Subordinates may hesitate to make upward communication because they lack confidence in themselves.
- Flattery: Subordinates try to flatter their superiors to get some advantage.

(Any 4 × 2) (8)

6.7
- Start with the brand image: Build on what was done before. Unless is totally new product launched, the brand already has a position in the market compared to other products, and it already has an image or personality.
- Make a promise that matters: The promise must really matter to the target market. In each product category there is often one benefit for which every brand would like to stand.
- Make a unique promise: Offer a benefit that no other competing product has for a unique selling point (USP).
- Choose a fact: If possible, pick a feature or a benefit that no one can doubt or argue about.
- Take on competitors: Take on competitors by pointing out their weaknesses. What does the product offer that the competitors don't?
- Turn a disadvantage into an advantage: Try turning a disadvantage into something to be proud of.
- Finding the creative ideas: Once consumer promise is known, find a way to give it a fresh and surprising twist.
- Make it measurable: Time is a measurement we all agree on.
- Make it meaningful: It must be followed with action. (Any 5 × 2) (10)

[40]

QUESTION 7

7.1
- The two parties must come to an agreement between them.
- The offer must be serious and definite, not vague.
- Both parties should have the same understanding of what the agreement is about.
- The contract should not be illegal or go against the morals of society.
- The parties must be legally allowed to enter into a contract.
- There must be an offer.
- There must be an acceptance.
- There must be mutuality of obligation.
- There must be consideration. (Any 4 × 2) (8)

7.2
- A larger pool of information and skills from which to draw on.
- A wider range of viewpoints, insights and solutions.
- Better decisions can happen as a result.
- More team commitment to the decision.
- Greater acceptability.
- Expert opinions.
- Degree of involvement.
- Encourages participation. (Any 4 × 2) (8)

7.3 7.3.1
- They believed that you should try to know more than your competitors do about the market.
- They believed that good advertising lay in finding out what moved people's emotions, and then analysing why. (Any 1 × 2)

7.3.2
- He liked to appeal to the intelligence of the consumer.
- He believed every advertisement should help to create the brand image or the personality of a product, and that this personality should stick in consumers' minds year after year. (Any 1 × 2)

7.3.3 They believed that simplicity is the key to good advertising.

7.3.4
- He focused on creating characters that could stand as symbols for a product, such as a cartoon tiger for Kellogs cereals.
- He used the technique of inherent drama. Every product or service has some kind of drama that makes the product stand out.
- He used earthy vernacular (spoken language) – friendly words to which consumers could relate. (Any 1 × 2)

(4 × 2) (8)

7.4
- It should be appropriate to the brand image, product and target market
- It must be innovative and appealing
- It must achieve clear and measurable objectives
- It must be achievable with the budget (4 × 2) (8)

7.5
- Self-awareness: Being aware of what you are feeling
- Self-management: Being able to control or manage your emotions and urges
- Self-motivation: Being able to keep going when things get tough
- Empathy: Being able to sense how others are feeling
- Social skills: Being able to handle the emotion of others (Any 4 × 2) (8)

[40]

TOTAL: 200