QUESTION 2

2.1 Ethics is the systematic study of what is right and wrong, often a set of principles or a code (e.g. professional or religious ethics) ✓✓. Morals are the personal beliefs and values about right and wrong that guide an individual's behaviour ✓✓. (4)

2.2 4 marks per religion (teaching ✓, source / concept ✓, practical example ✓✓). Examples: Christianity / Judaism: God created the earth and humans are stewards who must care for it (Genesis); recycling projects, Season of Creation. Islam: humans are khalifah (trustees) of Allah's creation; waste (israf) is discouraged. Hinduism: respect for all life (ahimsa); rivers and animals such as cows are sacred. Buddhism: compassion for all living beings; interdependence. ATR: land and nature are linked to the ancestors; sacred sites and taboos protect plants and animals. (8)

2.3 Unequal treatment (max 4): some traditions have restricted women from leadership roles (e.g. priesthood, imams, chiefs) ✓✓; patriarchal interpretations of texts have been used to limit women's roles ✓✓. Equal worth (max 4): many texts teach that all humans are created equal or in God's image ✓✓; many religious groups now ordain women and fight gender-based violence ✓✓. Accept balanced, respectful discussion with examples. (8)

2.4 Any FIVE: feeding schemes and soup kitchens ✓; giving to the poor as a religious duty (e.g. zakat, tithes, dana) ✓; running shelters, orphanages and clinics ✓; skills training and job-creation projects ✓; speaking out for social justice ✓; bursaries; food parcels during disasters (5)

2.5 Rights can be limited (section 36 of the Constitution) when the limitation is reasonable and justifiable in an open, democratic society ✓✓. A religious practice may be limited if it harms others or breaks other rights ✓, e.g. if it endangers children's health or safety, involves violence or abuse, or discriminates unfairly ✓✓. (5)

2.6 Respectful conversation and cooperation between people of different religions ✓ to understand each other better ✓. Benefits, any TWO: builds tolerance and peace ✓; reduces prejudice and conflict ✓; religious groups can work together on social problems (poverty, crime, HIV/AIDS) ✓. (5)

QUESTION 3

3.1 The theory and method of interpreting texts, especially sacred texts ✓✓. (2)

3.2 Literal: the text is taken at its plain, word-for-word meaning ✓✓. Symbolic: the text is read for a deeper, spiritual or moral meaning; stories may be understood as symbols or metaphors ✓✓. Example (2 marks): the creation story in six days may be read as literally six 24-hour days, or symbolically as showing that God is the creator and the world has order ✓✓. (6)

3.3 Any FIVE: orally, through stories, myths and legends ✓; proverbs and sayings ✓; songs, praise poetry and dance ✓; rituals and ceremonies (e.g. initiation, weddings, funerals) ✓; elders, traditional healers (izangoma) and family heads teach the young ✓; through daily life and example (5)

3.4 Any TWO: different methods of interpretation (literal vs symbolic) ✓; different translations or languages ✓; different historical or cultural contexts; different traditions or denominations (2)

3.5 Possible content (mark according to the religions chosen): Christianity: belief in the resurrection of the body; judgement; eternal life with God in heaven (or separation in hell); salvation through faith in Jesus. Islam: life is a test; on the Day of Judgement each person's deeds are weighed; reward in Jannah (paradise) or punishment in Jahannam (hell). Judaism: focus on this life and keeping God's commandments; many Jews believe in the world to come (Olam Ha-Ba) and the resurrection of the dead. Hinduism: the soul (atman) is reborn (reincarnation) according to karma until it reaches moksha (liberation). Buddhism: rebirth according to karma until enlightenment (nirvana) ends the cycle of suffering. ATR: the dead become ancestors who remain part of the family and guide the living; funeral and homecoming rituals help the spirit join the ancestors. Similarities, e.g.: life continues after death; how one lives now affects what happens after death. Differences, e.g.: one life and judgement vs many rebirths; heaven vs remaining among the living as ancestors. (20)
