QUESTION 2

Read the following scenario and answer the questions.

Nombelu is a young woman of 29 who decided at the age of 21 to open her own fashion design business in a township. She got financial assistance from an overseas company to establish her business. As her business grew, she employed more and more people to assist her with the growing demand for her product. She focuses mainly on traditional cultural clothes for the African market, but overseas visitors are showing an increasing interest in her products. She became an accredited facilitator to train upcoming young designers to enter the fashion world. She wants to share the following reality checks with you before starting your own business:

1. Are you ready to change your lifestyle? Starting a business is hard work, very time-consuming and you need to realise that it is a long term project.

2. Are there customers with a real need and money? You may love your own idea, others may also love your idea, but that is not enough.

3. Is the market opportunity large and growing? Did you do proper marketing research? Don't go on a 'feeling' that there is a need for your product.

4. Does your solution have hidden dependencies or costs? . Make sure you understand all costs, sales channels, marketing requirements, the cost of keeping stock and cultural issues.

5. Can you build a motivated and qualified team? It's hard to build a business as the Lone Ranger. You need to assemble, motivate, and manage a team . You will deal with a lot of internal and external stakeholders.

6. Are you aware of your surroundings? You are not functioning on an island. What about the value of the rand, competitors, technology, crime, suppliers…

7. Do you have a good understanding of your type of ownership? Are you willing to share your profits? Are you willing to take the risk alone? Are you a good manager?

Remember, the grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence. Don't leave your current job if you cannot answer the questions above!

NCV

2.1 'One question that you need to answer is whether you are aware of your surroundings.' With reference to Nombelu's business, discuss the market and macro environment that she needs to familiarise herself with continually. Present your answer in the following table format: (12 × 1) (12)

Macro environment	One example of impact on Nombelu's business	An example of an opportunity it poses	An example of a threat it poses
