HOT TIPS FOR KEEPING FIT IN WINTER AND AFTERWARDS

With the colder weather, people tend to stay at home. But weather should not affect your routine. From a health point of view, exercise helps boost your immune system. During winter people are prone to flu and viral infections but experts advise that staying consistently active helps keep illnesses at bay as exercise boosts your immune system.

Motivate yourself that whether it's done early in the morning or later in the day, exercise has to be done! There's no such thing as perfect weather for running or exercise – it's about discipline and dedication. Also, remember why you are doing it. If you're exercising because it seems to be the trend, chances are that when it's raining you'll find an excuse not to do it. But when there's a bigger purpose and a reason, you will stick to your routine, come rain or sunshine.

These days, everything that is done at the gym can be done at home. You can use your own body weight, to do exercises like lunges, squats, push-ups, star jumps or find some staircases and run the stairs. If you don't have dumbbells, people have become creative. They take two-litre bottles, fill them with water and use those as their weights!

Don't try to do too much too soon, especially beginners. Just allow yourself to ease into things. Rushing things is one thing that stops people from being consistent with their exercise.

Particularly women must make sure they have the right support and are wearing the right bra. Chafing is one of the biggest consequences of incorrect fits. Consult with someone who specialises in bra fitment. There may be a cost involved, but it's important.

Make sure you have the right shoes – whether it's for running or for gym, a proper assessment before purchase is very important. Most sports shops have a person who will assist you in buying the correct shoes according to what you plan to do. Remember that wrong shoes can result in knee injury or back problems. Don't risk that!

Keep walking as this is the simplest strategy for keeping your exercise quota up. Skip taxis where possible and swop slops for trainers and explore your environment on foot. So often we choose convenience over activity. Park further from the shopping entrance and squeeze in extra walks after dinner in new destinations.

Hiking outdoors towards a planned destination is a great group activity for friends – especially in our awesome South African weather. Choose a scenic route, pack a picnic basket and aim for a specific destination.

Explore your environment. When you look around, you'll see that your home town offers a lot of fun and novel ways to entertain yourself! Nothing feels less like exercise while burning a ton of calories, than bouncing like a kid on trampolines!

If you struggle with motivation, sign yourself and your friends up for charity walks and fun runs. Not only are you getting a guaranteed workout and feeling encouraged to exercise in preparation, but you'll enjoy a social experience with your friends whilst supporting a good cause.
