SECTION A

QUESTION 1

1.1 Indicate whether the following statements are TRUE or FALSE. Choose the answer and write only 'True' or 'False' next to the question number (1.1.1–1.1.20) in the ANSWER BOOK.

1.1.1 Competence refers to an ability to do something.

1.1.2 When developing a competency-based modular training programme, modules must be tested after being developed.

1.1.3 A training module must be simple and easy to understand.

1.1.4 The first step to be taken when developing a competency-based modular training programme entails describing skills, knowledge and attitudes relevant to the training objectives.

1.1.5 Training refers to the transfer or gaining of knowledge, skills and attitudes that improve the capabilities of an employee.

1.1.6 Competency-based modular training provides practice and revision.

1.1.7 Norm-based training requires trainers to follow a prescribed syllabus and schedule.

1.1.8 In competency-based modular training, learning time is varied.

1.1.9 In norm-based training, test results are compared with the group's results.

1.1.10 Instructors using the competency-based training approach are evaluated according to the percentage of learning objectives achieved and in terms of their motivation of the trainees.

1.1.11 Elements of competence are actions, behaviour or outcomes that a person must be able to demonstrate.

1.1.12 A training module is a small part of a complete training programme.

1.1.13 Norm-based training concentrates on training of an employee in a specific situation to achieve a specific set of competencies.

1.1.14 One of the characteristics of competency-based training is that difficult and complicated skills are placed in the last part of the programme.

1.1.15 In norm-based training, learners must achieve competency to continue to the next objective.

1.1.16 In competency-based training, trainers are responsible for achieving learning objectives.

1.1.17 In competency-based training, candidates' results may vary between 15% and 85% with the average being around 50%.

1.1.18 Learners trained using a norm-based training method are allowed to continue with a higher level, as long as they have achieved the minimum level of competency.

1.1.19 Performance criteria describe the previously set standards against which the performance of a person is measured and judged.

1.1.20 One of the characteristics of competency-based modular training is that its emphasis is on admission requirements.
