Abuse can be physical, sexual, emotional or verbal; it is intimidation or manipulation of another person or an intrusion into another's psyche; the purpose is to control another person. It is generally a long term pattern of behaviour although specific short term interactions can be labelled abusive.

Recently the following categories have been included in definitions of abusive behaviour: social, economic, intellectual and spiritual. With child abuse neglect is also an important component.

Abuse cuts across all social categories and classes. It occurs in well-educated high income areas and in low income working class areas; it happens in all races and religions.

It can occur in families, extended families, in neighbourhoods, schools, churches, and community groups. Both men and women can be abusive and it can occur in virtually all age groups. The old can abuse the young and the young the old. While standards are different in various cultures, it occurs in virtually all countries as well.

Because it is often learned at an early age, it can be passed from generation to generation like a family disease. This is called the intergenerational cycle of abuse.

Abuse tends to happen to people in a weaker position or to those who are willing to be accommodating. Thus a stronger brother will abuse a weaker brother; an agreeable and supportive wife may be abused by her uncompromising husband; a teacher may pick on a student who is having learning problems; a spoiled teenage boy may manipulate a parent in an abusive manner.

The site AbusiveLove.com is primarily about verbal abuse although it discusses other abusive behaviours as well. It concentrates on verbal because most abusive behaviour includes verbal elements and because words and tone of voice can be identified and changed more easily than other kinds. Attacking and changing abusive verbal behaviour will go a long way to preventing other abusive problems all of us are guilty of abuse! No one is totally clean. All of

So each of us that wants to stop the cycle of abuse can look within ourselves for the same behaviour that we see in others, the abusers who are trying to control us with their abusiveness. 45 w.p.m.
