3.2
- There are several optionS with alphabetic classifications. Mostly the initial and surname is used, geographical area or subject. It's all done to suit the nature and the uniqueness of the business.
- Numeric classification – numbers are assigned to each file; files are arranged in a strict numerical order as they are created. Numerical dividers are also used.
- Alpha-numerical classification combines alphabetical and numerical classification systems. Files are arranged alphabetical but not in a strict order only the first letter of the surname is considered and a number is also assigned.

(2 × 2) (4)

3.3 3.3.1 Mr Harry calls to add a shuttle service on his Zimbali Lodge accommodation booking. Due to carelessness the shuttle information was not attached to the original booking. When it was time to issue the vouchers, the shuttle service voucher was not issued.

3.3.2 As a new filing consultant I had no idea that files must be put in a letter sorter while awaiting filling. All files were messed up on my desk and when I tried to file them accordingly according to their geographic areas I made a mix up, putting files under the wrong areas.

3.3.3 In a very busy travel agency, booking cards were filed in alpha-numerical order. I had to open an alphabetical file for each new client and at the same time create an index card with the same details of the client with a numerical filing system, this resulted in misfiling as many clients are coming at the same time.

3.3.4 Zelda was going on a half day, she could not wait as it was her mom's birthday. Her was mind was already at home though she was still at work. She issued Mr. Harry's accommodation voucher for that night and filled in Mr. Hatter's booking file.
