KNYSNA FIRE PUTS CRUCIAL TOURISM SECTOR AT RISK

Local travellers should be encouraged to support the fire-ravaged Garden Route hub, says SA Tourism CEO.

Tourism establishments in Knysna have been recording a huge number of cancellations from international tourists, a situation that could lead to the loss of 2 500 jobs in the town's crucial tourism sector.

According to SA Tourism, a number of international tourists had cancelled their bookings following the devastating fires earlier in June that destroyed more than 600 structures in Knysna and Plettenberg Bay.

Knysna, a well-established adventure and leisure tourism area along the scenic Garden Route, is heavily reliant on the tourism industry. SA Tourism CEO, Sisa Ntshona, said at the weekend that the best way to assist the town was to encourage locals to travel there, which would aid the sector's recovery. 'We've seen local corporates and people coming together to offer help and donations, which is great, but for sustainability purposes, the best way to help Knysna is to travel there,' said Ntshona. One of the town's signature events is the Oyster Festival, which is scheduled to be held in July.

'The Knysna Oyster Festival is still on and we encourage people to attend. The fires also offer an opportunity for the sector to build greener and more eco-friendly establishments,' said Ntshona. However, he said the country's tourism sector could suffer because of the recession and the dire economic climate as locals tightened their belts.

Last week, Western Cape economic opportunities MEC Alan Winde said that the majority of Knysna's tourism offerings remained intact. In 2016, it is estimated that tourist-spend in Knysna totalled more than R2bn. 'We have seen a tremendous amount of support for this region's tourism sector. We have 4 000 beds available and we are drawing closer to what is traditionally a very busy time for Knysna,' said Winde.

'The Oyster Festival is set to go ahead as planned. It traditionally attracts over 70 000 visitors, generating more than R100m for the regional economy. Most importantly, it creates 2 000 jobs for residents. This is the economic impact of tourism in this town, and at this point, it is needed more than ever.'

Wesgro CEO Tim Harris said: 'Wesgro has allocated R100 000 to sponsor and promote the Knysna Oyster Festival and Knysna as an ideal place to visit in winter. 'We are on a mission to remind tourists and investors that the Garden Route and Klein Karoo region remain open for business.'

HOW DOES SA'S JUNK STATUS AFFECT TOURISM?

NEWS / 27 APRIL 2017, 02:00AM / MATTHEW HIRSCH

Stakeholders have voiced their concern on what impact political instability could have on the sector and several tourism hotspots around Cape Town.

While stakeholders in the tourism industry are concerned about the potential negative impacts of the recent junk status rating of our economy by two ratings agencies, they agree that it's too early to gauge the impact on the sector.

While the number of visitors over the summer season has been high, Janine Myburgh, president of the Cape Chamber of Commerce and Industry, said it was too early to tell what impact political instability could have on the sector.

'Although a weaker rand is a boon for tourists on the dollar, euro and pound, the downgrading will have a negative knock-on effect for the tourism sector where operating costs will increase. Whether the latter will overshadow the former, we do not know,' she said.

The major costs to the sector because of the downgrades, she added, would be the operating costs.

'Everything we import will cost more. That means more expensive petrol, medicines, clothes and food. These higher prices will work their way through the economy, so it will affect virtually all input costs that affect tourism – from food to fuel.'

'Although South Africa is a unique country, we still need to compete internationally on price and with operational costs going up, this could erode our competitive advantage. 'Ms Myburgh added: 'The average stay of foreign tourists is four days, and we have unconfirmed reports that although tourism figures are up, the retail spends by these tourists are down. The challenge is to get the tourists to increase their daily spend beyond just visiting the major attractions.'

5.1 Classify the following business environments as MICRO or MACRO environment. Choose the answer and write only 'Micro' or 'Macro' next to the question number (5.1.1–5.1.5) in the ANSWER BOOK.
